RAISING AWARENESS Breast Cancer

Exciting News!

The Japan-America Society of Houston is working with Methodist Hospital to raise awareness for breast cancer in Houston, Texas.

Starting this week, JASH will begin building a Senbarzuru (1001 Pink Cranes) for the Breast Cancer Center. The display will be presented to Methodist hospital during the month of October and we can use your help!

Raising Awareness

JASH will be working with local hospitals to raise the awareness of certain health-related projects and foundations, designed to increase the public's awareness of important matters that can affect nearly anyone's friends and family. Our first project will be raising the awareness of Breast Cancer.

The Truth About Breast Cancer

- Nearly 200,000 of new patients facing breast cancer are discovered every year.
- Women and men are at risk.
- Prevention is the greatest 'cure.' Early warning detections through annual exams are the single most important factor in combating breast cancer.
- There are a wide range of treatments readily available.

How to contribute

If you possess the existing talents of origami or would like to learn, our volunteers can provide a series of demonstrations for you. Additionally, we will be organizing origami gatherings to begin building an inventory of 1001 cranes. We can deepen the relationships of our members and contributing associations while working together on an important issue that affects us all.

Become a part of something extraordinary

To foster unity and strengthen relationships, JASH will begin working with a myriad of other associations in Houston to building a impressive display for the patients and families at Methodist Hospital. Our goal is absolutely achievable and we already have 60 Pink cranes completed! We are already making progress! If you would like to join forces with our society and add your own time and talent to this extraordinary cause, please contact us immediately! We would love to hear from you!
